

New York City Summons

Sample Summons for Selling Tickets too close to the stadium.
 This was one of many such summonses issued during the US Open Tennis tournament. It doesn't matter if the tickets are sold at or below face value. The NYPD welcomes tourists to NYC by using undercover officers to seek tickets from people who may not be up on the obscure administrative regulation making it an offense to sell tickets for any price within a certain distance of the entertainment arenas. The real scalpers make small fortunes while people simply trying to recoup money spent on individual tickets are arrested.
